Accredited “A” Grade by NAAC

Unveiling Excellence

About the training Programs:

The purpose of the orientation program is to acquaint and harness the fresh batch of students with knowledge regarding how a culture in an organization impacts quality of outcomes. The stakeholders have a lot to do with building an organizational culture and in any academic institution of higher education students play a pivotal role as the ratio of students and learners stays relatively higher than that of educators. This orientation program will attempt to help students in identify the different stakeholders who are responsible for ensuring organizational quality.

The induction phase of the students in the institute involves numbers of orientation programs on the various topics of concern. However, this orientation would help the students to be friendly with the concept of building organizational culture which would help them on their future journey of life as well by developing a sense of responsibility as a stakeholder on building organizational culture.

Objectives:

1. To understand the importance of an organizational culture
2. To identify the dimensions of quality in organization
